Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-15 are allowed.

Reasons for Allowance

The following is a statement of reasons for indication of allowable subject matter.

The prior art fails to teach or suggest the limitations of:

“processing unit configured to execute a comparison process as to both credit card charge historical information issued from said credit card firm and balance account information saved in said settling financial institution” (as in Claim 1).

Such limitation is present in all independent claims.

It is old and well known in the art for analyze historical and current transactional information pertaining to predict and/or detect fraudulent transactions, usually indicated when a transaction deviates from the historical transactional information by a statistically significant quantity.

The instant application distinguishes from these old and well known practices by comparing the historical transactional information obtained from a credit card firm and balance account information obtained from a settling financial institution from said credit card transactions, and generating output based upon the comparison of such information.

Gopinathan (US Patent 5,819,226) discloses a method/system for detecting fraudulent transactions through analysis and modeling of financial information, such information including historical transactional information from a credit card firm. (see col. 1, line 48 – col. 2, line 24; col. 5, line 64 – col. 6, line 4). While Gopinathan discloses obtaining additional information from additional database sources (see col. 5, line 64 – col. 6, line 4), neither this patent, alone nor in combination with others, discloses nor suggests the feature of comparing such information against balance account information obtained from a settling financial institution from said credit card transactions, and generating output based upon the comparison of such information.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled “Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance.”
